

SHOTOKAN KARATE

The way of the empty hand, karate-do is a self-defense oriented martial art in which the entire body is systematically trained and molded to become an effective defense against an enemy aggressor.

It is an art built on achieving the perfection of each of its techniques, rather than simply acquiring the limited knowledge of a multitude. It is a more linear fighting style based on speed and the philosophy that the shortest distance between two points is a straight line. It also maintains that a direct line of attack is the safest and most effective.

All are welcome to watch or participate in a class

Karate training is an excellent form of physical and mental exercise for improving and maintaining health for all ages. It develops co-ordination, balance, strength, agility, alertness, mental discipline, and promotes uniform muscle development. Few modern physical leisure activities provide the combination of attributes that one can develop through regular Karate training.

Diligent study of this Japanese art produces great speed and tremendous power facilitated by strong stances and excellent posture. Proper study eliminates ego, promotes a hard honest work ethic, cultivates humility and excellence, all while improving your physical conditioning.
